By blending learning concepts with imaginative tales, we transform their educational journey into a joyful ride. This magical approach not only deepens understanding but also ignites a passion for discovery, making every lesson a memorable memoir.

Students' Speak

It started as just another day, with exams looming and my focus set on studies. Suddenly, my beloved dance instructor walked into the classroom with unexpected news—we had bagged 2nd position in the Folk-Dance Zonal Competition! I was too astonished to speak. She then informed me that I would miss three tests to prepare for our district-level performance. At first, the idea felt overwhelming, but soon I embraced the challenge, learning to strike a balance between academics and practice for the district-level competition.

The days became a blend of dance rehearsals and study sessions. With my dance group training hard every day, I had to carefully plan my schedule, carving out time for studies and much-needed rest. After each practice, I'd snatch a quick nap before diving into math lessons. I fuelled my body with a high-protein diet, stayed hydrated and energized for the intense days ahead.

After ten days of relentless discipline and dedication, our hard work paid off—we secured 2nd place in the South-East District! My heartfelt gratitude goes to my wonderful teachers, my supportive parents, and of course my fellow dancers, without whom none of this would have been possible.

Harleen Chopra
Grade VII

Although, I initially thought it would be difficult to prepare for my district-level competition during the exams, yet I couldn't let go of such a significant chance.

With my stupendous feat at the Zonal, which had inspired me to multi-task during my exam days by studying and rehearsing my speech simultaneously, I also became eager to compete at the next level and prove my mettle.

My approach was straightforward yet efficient: I had done some meticulous planning prior to taking my tests, and would use intermittent study-breaks to master the oratorical skills, the key requirement to mark my seat as a winner. Following my exam, I committed myself to memorizing the speech, and soon I was thoroughly prepared to give a cut-throat competition to all my fellow competitors.

I am grateful to my school for rescheduling my exam, which allowed me to appear for the paper confidently. The support I received from my parents & teachers also turned out to be unmatched; their words of affirmation motivated me to reach my objective. This experience taught me to never underestimate my capabilities and that no obstacle is insurmountable, if you put in the necessary effort.

The teachers are incredibly cooperative and patient, and the Principal, Ms. Rosemary is both humble and attentive.

The school has not only helped me understand my child better, but it has also fostered our growth together as a mother and son. I have learned effective techniques for teaching my son that have made my journey as a parent much easier and more enjoyable.

I want my children to embrace values such as respecting elders and understanding their parents, fostering love and acceptance. Me and my child are proud to be a part of this wonderful school community.

These lessons extended beyond the classroom, inspiring me to model similar values at home. The focus on academic excellence also encouraged me to prioritize education at home. I've adopted a more active role in my children's learning, fostering curiosity and a love for knowledge. Paul George Global School has played a pivotal role in shaping my parenting approach.
