My Dear Paul Georgeans,

Greetings to all of you! I hope this message finds you well as we enter another exciting month of learning and growth.

It is really appreciable to witness the efforts you have been making to win laurels in Science Olympiad, Inter-House and Inter-School Competitions. Keep up the spirit! Always remember that willingness to participate and fair play are as important as winning. If you have done your best, you should not get anxious about the outcome. In order to succeed, your desire to succeed should be greater than your fear of failure.

We know that Late Shri Paul M George, the former Executive Director of The Muthoot Group, embodied the four core values of a human life - Courage, Compassion, Equality and Integrity. These values are the foundation of PGGs that we keep very close to our heart and therefore observe that the activities, competitions and celebrations of the school are designed to nurture these core values in every Paul Georgian. The coming month calendar, offers many opportunities to each one of you, to give your best.

At this point, my message to all Paul Georgeans, would be to build a character defined by a high degree of integrity and honesty. Develop a strong self-belief on being truthful irrespective of the result and carve a niche for yourself in this competitive global village.

As we approach the dual celebration of Independence Day and Rakshabandhan, let us remember the values they stand for - the bonds of family, the spirit of unity, Integrity and respect for Women. These principles resonate deeply with our school's ethos, guiding us to become responsible citizens who embrace diversity, uphold dignity and strive for excellence.

Wishing you all a very Happy Independence Day and a joyous and heartwarming Rakshabandhan!

Regards,

PARENTS' SPEAK

Rainy Days and Healthy Ways: A Kid's Guide to Monsoon Safety

Hello, young friends! As you know, the rainy season brings a lot of fun, jumping in puddles, and lovely cool weather. But it also carries some risks that we should be aware of. So here are some simple precautions and healthy habits you can follow:

Keep Dry- Always carry an umbrella or a raincoat to school and other places. Getting wet in the rain may be fun, but you can catch a cold.

Avoid Puddles- I know, puddles look like a lot of fun to jump in, right? But puddles can have harmful germs that can make you sick. They can also have sharp things hidden in them that can hurt your feet.

Wash Your Hands- This is always important, but even more so during the rainy season. Washing your hands with soap can keep germs away and keep you healthy.

Eat Healthy- Eating lots of fruits and vegetables keeps your body strong and helps fight germs. Also, ensure the food you eat is fresh and properly cooked, as the rainy season is when germs sneak into our food.

Drink Safe Water- Drinking filtered water is best because it can carry germs during the rainy season. Try to bring water from home. And if you're feeling unwell, don't share it with others.

Wear Mosquito Repellent- The rainy season is when mosquitoes like to come out and play. Always apply mosquito repellent on your skin before you go out to keep them away.

Exercise- Indoor exercise can keep your body strong and healthy, especially when it's raining, and you can't go outside.

Get plenty of rest- A good night's sleep can do wonders for your immunity and prevents you from falling ill. Going to bed early and avoiding phones/tablets before sleeping ensures you are well-rested the following day.

Avoid crowded places- Viruses and other illnesses can spread quickly in crowded areas, so stay away from crowded places during the rainy season.

Remember, being healthy and safe doesn't mean you can't have fun! Follow these simple tips to enjoy the rainy season without worrying about getting sick. Keep yourself dry, clean, and strong, and you will be ready to splash into fun in the rainy season!
